Spring 1

Key Facts

Amy Johnson was an English aviator. She was the first ever female pilot to fly solo from Britain to Australia. She completed numerous journeys as a female pilot and she became very famous around the world.

- Amy bought her first aircraft with the help of her father. She bought a second-hand aircraft called a de Havilland DH.60 Gypsy Moth.
- She named this aircraft 'Jason' after her father's fish business.
- On 5th May 1930, Amy set off on her endeavour. She wanted to beat the world record for flying from the UK to Australia and the record at the time was 15 days. Unfortunately, due to bad weather conditions and some mechanical problems, she did not beat the world record. Her flight time was 19 days.
- Amy did become the first female pilot to fly from Croydon, England to Darwin,
- This was a phenomenal and courageous achievement and she was famous around the world.
- She was so famous that when she came home to England, a big crowd came to greet her and she had a tour of the London streets in an open topped car to see her fans.
