To be expert questioners we need to ask questions which encourage people to think. Some of these stems can be closed or open, depending on how they are used.

Author:

Diary of a Wimpy Kid author Jeff Kinney didn't grow up wanting to be a children's author. His dream was to become a newspaper cartoonist, but he wasn't able to get his comic strips syndicated.

Since initial publication of his book in 2007, the series has gone on to win many awards around the globe.

Context / Knowledge:

The main character, Greg, insists it is a journal he is writing and not a diary. Even though his Mum bought it for him to write down his feelings, he is doing it because he believes one day he will rich and famous. It is his first day of school and decides to write in his journal. He insists he won't be writing 'Dear Diary'.

Our reading strategy is Questioning

What is questioning?

Asking questions is seeking information.

Why do we ask questions?

So we think more deeply about the whole text.

So we check our understanding as we read.

What makes good Questions?

- Asking more open ended questions which make us think about the text.
- Author intent questions are an extra challenge.

I wonder

Why

How

What if

Why do you think

How do you think

How do we know

Support and Actively listen...

- Good question
- I like the way you asked an open question which makes me think about the text.

Key question:

What are you unsure about?

Answer:

I am unsure why the cheese is written with a capital letter as a proper noun. It makes me wonder if that is because it had become well known for something, so it was named the Cheese.

SEPTEMBER

That piece of Cheese has been sitting on the court since last spring. I guess it must've dropped out of someone's sandwich or something. After a couple of days, the Cheese started getting all mouldy and nasty. Nobody would play basketball on the court where the Cheese was, even though that was the only court that had a hoop with a net.

Example Answer:

I wonder why they didn't just ask an adult to help to remove it because it must have been frustrating not being able to play basketball.
