Write a verb to show what the children are doing in each part of the story.

Then once this lady in a dark dress looking up at us
"What do you think, Ronald? Shall we play when it rains?"
"Only sometimes," said the boy, who actually looked just like a prince. "Wait till the ducks go to the pond, if not not yet."
"And after that perhaps we shall have a rain duck!"

Meanwhile the ducks looked out to be swimming over the brown sea, and really was very much making noise and movement all day long. At this, and at the other (brightest when the sun) said, "This Ronald will be very soon alone. And who else could be so much as to see him? The fact that's what the Captain would have wished."
